GREAT BRITAIN AGAIN CONSCRIPTION

Premier Lloyd George Makes Plain His Views--Claims Military System Re- sponsible for War

(By Associated Press)
London, Dec. 13.—Premier Lloyd George in a statement to Reuters' Limited tonight, on the subject of conscription, said that he wished to make it clear beyond all doubt that he stood for the abolition of conscription of armies in all of the lands. Without it the peace conference will be a sham and a failure. These great military systems have been responsible for the horrible suffering of humanity during the past four years. It would be a dismal failure if the peace conference failed to make this a part of the final treaty. Every delegate from Great Britain would be instructed to work for this end.

ALLIED OFFICERS SENT TO POLAND

Washington, Dec. 13.—Marshal Foch has sent officers of the allied armies to Poland to investigate the pogroms reported to have taken place there recently. Departure of the mission was announced, an official dispatch today said, by Minister of Foreign Affairs Pichon who stated that from his information the disorders had been committed by released German and Austrian prisoners of war, returning from Russia.

These soldiers, Mr. Pichon explains, not under command of officers, wander at will through the country, sacking villages and attacking the population regardless of race or creed. The civil war between the Poles and Lithuanians in Galicia is ascribed by the minister to Bolshevik agents sent from Russia to stir up trouble along the border, France, he said, would take every step necessary to put an end to the disorders and he promised the Jews that the country would not permit further pogroms directed against their race.

SENATORS OPPOSE M'ADOO'S SCHEME

Members of Both Parties Criticise Proposal for Five Years' Test as Move for Ownership

Washington, Dec. 13.—Recommendation of Director-General McAdoo that government control of railroads be continued to Jan. 1, 1924, gave impetus today to congressional consideration of legislation, looking to a solution of the railway problem and also was the subject of a brief debate in the Senate.

The Senate interstate commerce committee was called to meet next Thursday to discuss Mr. McAdoo's letter and other phases of the general railroad subject, while the House committee will meet tomorrow with the expectation that the director-general's recommendation will be taken up.

Aside from the opposition voiced by Senator Kellogg at Minnesota, Republican, on the floor of the Senate today, many members, both Republicans and Democrats, were said to have expressed disapproval of Mr. McAdoo's proposal, but none of them spoke for publication.

Senator Kellogg charged that Mr. McAdoo really proposed a five-year test looking to a permanent government ownership of the carriers and added that if government control is extended for five years it would be impossible to return the roads to private ownership.

Senator Smith of South Carolina, chairman of the Senate commerce committee, declared that Mr. McAdoo's proposal was merely a personal opinion probably of unusual weight, but not conclusive upon Congress, to which President Wilson has submitted. Among the 30 attending the conference the question, Senator Kellogg then asked how President Wilson's approval for the five-year extension had been secured when the President in his address had disclaimed having any judgment on handling the railroad question.

While the Senate was debating the subject a number of industrial, commercial, financial and labor leaders and students of transportation problems discussed the formulation of a policy toward the roads at a conference called by the United States Chamber of Commerce. The conference will continue tomorrow in an effort to arrive at a basis of common principles accepted by all interests to be promulgated for public discussion. The discussions were secret, but it was said that many views, some conflicting, were presented today.

Walker D. Hines, assistant director-general of railroads, explained to the conference details of Mr. McAdoo's ideas in determining to ask Congress to extend government control to five years. He said that all interests urging immediate relinquishment of federal management specify that there should be remedial legislation to eliminate all wasteful competition, and explained the difficulties of obtaining suitable legislation representing mature views of the nation at this time.

Those who were: Paul M. Warburg, former member of the federal reserve board; Harry A. Wheeler, president of the Chamber of Commerce; and H. G. Riehl, former president; Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor; Winthrop M. Daniels, chairman of interstate commerce committee; Charles J. Elmer, president of the National Association of Railway and Utility Commissioners; George A. Post, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce's railroad committee; Prof. John R. Commons of the University of Wisconsin; Charles P. Neill, representing the railroad administration's labor department; Prof. W. Z. Ripley of University of Pennsylvania; S. E. Heberling, president of the Switchmen's Union; W. M. Doak, vice president of the railmen's Brotherhood; B. M. Jewell of the American Federation of Labor and Prof. E. H. A. Seligman of Columbia.

Director-General McAdoo explained today to callers his belief that it would be well to take the railroad question out of politics at this time, even though it might become an issue in the 1920 campaign, when a Congress is to be elected. He emphasized that it would be impracticable to continue government operation of railroads for 21 months after peace is declared, because of the threatened disturbance of railroad employees' morale, the interference by state authorities and the inability to prosecute a program of extensive improvements.

It would be buried in a lot of irrelevant matter, or would lack novelty in treatment.

Yet the moving picture plentifully besprinkled with imaginative touches which would quicken the interest of the workman would be more than worth its weight in gold. It is the easiest method of fixing attention on the cardinal principles of accident prevention and of getting these principles remembered.

Having this in mind, Mr. Beyer has made quite use of the material which he has dramatized. He hit upon the happy expedient of representing the factors which are mainly responsible for accidents (such as inattention, indifference, thoughtlessness, recklessness) in human form, except that the figures are distorted, made revolvent in appearance, and impish in their behavior.

All are under the direction of a hunk, brutal character who naturally sums up their particular attributes in his name—King Carelessness. He plans an invasion of a factory, and on his entrance sets his helpers to work.

It is not long before the spectator of the picture identifies each imp with the particular part he has to play and catches the drift of the story as to the moral, it sets out to point. This is patent in view of names these gnomes-like figures bear—"Take-a-chance," "Intention," "Didn't-think," "I-should-worry," etc. etc.

When they find a workman in a situation where carelessness would dictate a certain course, they use their influence in the other direction. It is human to take the course of least resistance, and those breeders of trouble have no difficulty in winning out. Men are injured, more or less severely. In two instances startling cases are shown, as when a man who lights his pipe under the prompting of "Didn't-think" steps around a corner into an engine which comes around a building. And, again, where a careless worker treats a live wound as a trifling matter because "I-should-worry" is "on the job," and blood poison sets in. In this latter instance we are treated to hospital scenes and given a glimpse of a real blood-poison case which no workman who sees the picture is likely to forget.

In the handling of the second part of the film where the safety engineer enlists the interest of the factory workers to make it impossible for King Carelessness to continue his activities, Mr. Beyer has been particularly successful. The novelty of the earlier scenes, instead of wearing off, is strengthened. And it is interesting to note that at no time do the situations become unreal because of the presence of the strange figures introduced. "The Outlaw" from start to finish proceeds with logical sequence.

NO INDICTMENTS ARE FOUND IN ELECTION CASES

Concord, Dec. 13.—No bills were found by the United States grand jury in the election cases, which were presented to the jury finishing its work Thursday afternoon and being discharged by Judge George W. Anderson. The Webb-Kenyon cases were not so fortunate, 241 indictments being returned Thursday morning and 99 of these had been disposed of when the afternoon session ended. Several indictments found were not given out by District Attorney Fred H. Brown.

Francis M. Polier, who recently escaped from the Concord jail with Howard Porter, another federal prisoner, was indicted for breaking and entering a postoffice building at Manchester and Henry C. Iram of Washington was indicted for failure to register Sept. 12. Polier was in jail awaiting action by the grand jury when he made his escape.

Judge Anderson disposed of the Webb-Kenyon cases in rapid order. All of the respondents entered pleas of guilty then the court had a series of questions which he put to the witnesses, asking the penalty by the manner in which they responded. The fines varied from $1 to $50 and costs, the costs averaging around $16 and $17 in each case. Apparently most of the liquor purchases were made to ward off or alleviate the influenza, and while Judge Anderson said it might be possible the flu was resorted to as a subterfuge, he was disposed to be merciful in view of the undoubted belief that liquor was a cure for influenza.

The men of foreign extraction, particularly came in for lenient treatment, the judge saying their ignorance of the language might serve as an excuse for ignorance of the law. Not all of those arraigned had the flu as an explanation.

The court announced that he was dealing mercifully with some of the cases on account of the influenza epidemic when many people brought liquor into the state as medicine, and several of those indicted who told stories along those lines had them accepted by the court.

The 150 fines were imposed upon two Claremont men who had brought three gallons and a quart and a half of whiskey into the state.

Nicholas Cochran of Manchester, arrested in Nashua with nine quarts of liquor that he had brought over the state line, was fined $40 and costs, while other Manchester people paid fines of $5, $10 and $15.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets. These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Most headaches, "dullness" and that lary feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "foggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c a box. All druggists.

MIGHTIEST NAVY AIM OF AMERICA

Fleet Should Equal Britain's by 1925 Badger Declares.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Neither the end of hostilities nor proposals for a League of Nations has altered the policy of the General Board of the navy in regard to making the American navy second to none in the world.

Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger, chairman of the executive committee of the board, told the House Naval Affairs Committee that the navy should be equal to that of any other nation by 1925, and urged that sufficient appropriations be made this possible be made by Congress.

The General Board believes that under the present world conditions and the conditions likely to obtain in the future, Admiral Badger said, the United States navy should steadily continue to increase. Ultimately it should be equal to the most powerful maintained by any other nation of the world. Year by year development should be made as consistent with the facilities of the country, but the limit above defined should be attained not later than 1925.

Big Navies Necessary
"Navies must be the principal support of a League of Nations, and the United States, from its wealth, influence and power, will be called upon to contribute a large share of the international police force to render such a league effective."

The duty of the navy in the future, the Admiral said, will be not only to guard the country against invasion, but to protect as well the great Merchant Marine now being built.

"Sea power will always remain a factor of vast importance in international relations," Admiral Badger declared. "The great naval lesson of the war has been that the nation possessing the most powerful navy was able, in a few weeks, to drive the German merchant flag from the seas and to keep open her own trade routes, and yet, when the war commenced, Germany possessed the second best navy in the world. It proved to be not good enough. The blockade which she was not able to break was the greatest contributing cause of her ultimate collapse."

Urges Completion of Program
Completion of the three-year building program authorized in 1916 and which was halted to build anti-submarine craft, was recommended by Admiral Badger.

Work has not yet been started on six battleships, six battle cruisers, two scout cruisers, nine fleet submarines, two destroyer tenders and one fleet submarine tender, he said. Lack of ships of this type, he declared, would have been fatal to the United States if it had been fighting the war alone. Admiral Badger said that before the armistice was signed requiring Germany to surrender the great part of its navy the general board had recommended a six-year building program to include 12 superdreadnaughts and 16 battle cruisers, but added that immediate necessities would be met by the three-year building program recommended by the secretary of the navy.

This program will add 16 battle cruisers to the six already authorized, he said, and at the same rate of authorization would make a total of 19 by 1925. Great Britain now has 18 of these vessels built or building, he said, and it is estimated she will have 19 or 20 by 1925.

Admiral Badger said that type for type, American battleships compare favorably in power with those of any other nation, pointing out that the six battleships soon to be laid down are designed for a displacement of 42,000 tons, of 23 knots speed, a main battery of 12 16-inch guns and are heavily armored. They will be the most powerful vessels in the world, he said.

Plans, Big Destroyer Fleet
Admiral Badger said that provision for 107 destroyers is made in the 1920 three-year program. There are now 342 either built or being built, he said, and in 1925 there will therefore be a total of 450, compared with England's 516 at present.

The submarine program calls for 21 fleet submarines, 146 S-type, 24 anti-submarines and 42 mine-layers, he said. There are now built, building or authorized, a total of 169 coast submarines and 12 fleet submarines. The General Board estimates that 281 S-type boats are required and recommends that 75 be authorized now. The British navy has now built or building 228 submarines, or which about 75 are of large or fleet type.

Admiral Badger emphasized the need for additional mine sweepers and patrol vessels and spoke of the development during the war of the airplane carrier. Fleet engagements will be preceded in the future by operations in the air, he said, and the General Board recommends that the fleet be provided with facilities to carry on such operations.

Disposition of ships surrendered by Germany rests with the peace conference, Admiral Badger said in response to questions at the close of the meeting as to whether or not he thought these vessels should be destroyed, returned or distributed among the Allies.

"If England gets the lion's share of these ships?" asked Representative Kelley, of Michigan, Republican, "do you still think we should build to the point where we would have a navy equal to hers?"

Must Equal British Fleet
"The necessity of the United States navy being equal to the most powerful maintained by any other nation in the world by 1925 is as great now as it has ever been," replied the Admiral.

"This may not be possible by 1925 if the German ships are distributed in large numbers to certain powers, but we should do it as speedily as possible."

In reply to a question by Representative Butler whether the General Board had adopted any general policy in regard to the distribution of the fleet in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, Admiral Badger said that no policy had been recommended.

An account of the development and scope of activities of German submarines was given by Admiral Badger. Ten years ago the submarine was not larger than 100 tons, could cruise less than 500 miles and was very vulnerable. Today they are 30 times larger and can make trips of 7000 miles or more. They have destroyed hundreds of vessels and have laid mines in sea lanes and in harbors, making constant sweeping operations necessary. No one knows, the Admiral said, how much further the development will go.

Huns Had 165 U-Boats

One hundred and fifty German and seven Austrian submarines were sunk in the war prior to August, Admiral Badger told the committee, quoting reports from Admiral Sims. He said the Germans had built 331 submarines and that the Austrian underwater fleet comprised only 33 craft, 10 of which were obsolete.

Aug. 1 last, Admiral Badger said, the Germans had 119 submarines operating in the Atlantic and 27 in the Mediterranean, while at the same time Austria had 18 in the Mediterranean.

Admiral Badger told the committee that the United States agreed with the British government to pay $50 for each American soldier transported overseas in British vessels. He said England frequently had asked for a larger sum, but no agreement as to an increase had been reached.

Brace Up the Mail Service.

A Boston paper makes a good point when in commenting upon the proposition to make extensive use of trucks and airplanes in the mail service it calls attention to the shortcomings of this service for some time past, saying: "The public has fretted, but has agreed that war necessity caused transportation delays and shortage of experienced employees. Now, however, its patience will be more quickly exhausted. The public looks for speedy reconstruction of the mail service and for new vitality in a department which apparently dropped the word 'efficiency' from its office mottoes long ago."

In these words the situation is correctly presented. The efficiency of the postal service has been waning for a long time and there would have been much louder protest than there has been had not the public been disposed to make allowance for war conditions. The people realized that the country was under abnormal conditions and submitted with the best grace possible to the annoyance and detriment arising from a mail service that was no where near up to the mark. Now that the war is over, they have a right to demand the service they pay for and are entitled to.

The postal service needs a decided bracing up and the work of improvement should not be delayed. The tardy delivery of mail is a serious matter and hereafter there will be no excuse for it except when it is the exception and not the rule. The government is planning to improve the passenger service without delay, and it is sincerely to be hoped that in this connection it will not fail to put the mail service on a proper footing.

If the service can be improved in any particular by the use of motor trucks and airplanes, well and good. But all this will be more or less experimental. However, the old-time equipment is still at hand and the first step should be to see that it is properly used. If more help is needed it should be supplied at once. Most aggravated and inexcusable delays in the delivery of mail could here be quoted, and the trouble is not temporary, but of long standing, showing a deplorable defect at some point in the service.

The country has been through a trying experience. It was an experience that tried officials as well as the public, and it may be proper to assume that all have done the best they could under the circumstances. But the time has arrived for a different state of things, and unless this is brought about within a reasonable time complaints more forcible than polite will be heard.

It is proper that papers and people should begin to speak up. The patience they have exercised during the period of upheaval has been exceptional, but they cannot be expected to continue in this submissive mood. They are paying for a decent mail service, they are entitled to it, and if it is not soon forthcoming there will be a chorus of protest whose earnestness there will be no mistaking.

Now that a religious canvass of the city has been made, the various church organizations should be in position to do very effective work this winter, especially among the many strangers who have been drawn to Portsmouth by war activities. And it is entirely safe to assume that they will.

The cutting down process has begun in the shipyards of the country and it is the inefficient men who will go first, as is perfectly proper. In government work, as in all work, it pays a man to do his best. The country is not always at war and business is not always booming.

Health is one of the greatest blessings in the world, and if the experts sent here by the government can be of assistance in conserving the public health their services will be appreciated. They should, and undoubtedly will, be given a respectful hearing.

Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the President, has been singing for some time to the soldiers in France. But her father's voice at the Peace Conference, while perhaps not so musical, will command a much wider hearing.

Welcome to the people of New Hampshire is the news that Senator Moses has practically recovered from a severe attack of influenza and is to enjoy a period of rest at his home in Concord.

If that 9,000,000 pounds of candy which the War Department has ordered for the soldiers in France reaches them by Christmas it will be indeed a sweet reminder of "Home, sweet home."

The Republicans swept the city at the municipal election and are now under obligation to bear in mind the fact that with power goes responsibility.

SILVER STRIPE FOR SERVICE AT HOME

Washington, Dec. 12.—Acting in accordance with the desires of President Wilson, the War Department has officially announced a service stripe, as a badge of distinction, for officers and enlisted men not in the American forces overseas. They will be entitled to a silver chevron for the first six months' service and additional chevrons for each six months' service thereafter.

General Order No. 122, issued by the War Department concerning this recognition for the boys who served outside the actual theatre of operations, says:

"The President desires on behalf of the nation to express his appreciation of the vitally essential and self-sacrificing service given by the officers and men whom military necessity has held and is holding for the performance of duties outside the theatre of active operations.

"Their contribution to military success is no less than that of those who have had opportunity for service at the front. On them developed the creation of the great armies of the nation and their supply with the equipment and stores indispensable to military operation. Without them the troops abroad could have accomplished nothing. In many instances their retention on home duty has been due to their exceptional military and administrative efficiency.

"They have been in readiness for any service which the interests of the government required them to perform, and have been cheerful and without thought of self when given duties not in accordance with their own desires. The country holds in grateful appreciation the fundamental service they have rendered in the winning of the privilege of going abroad and taking war."

In Congress yesterday sentiment generally approved the granting of a silver stripe or some other insignia to the soldiers who "were denied the part in the actual fighting, as Representative Julius Kahn expressed it. Senator George E. Chamberlain, chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, was outspoken in favor of the suggestion. Senator Weeks approved it and added that he would recognize the "dollar a year" man also.

Although he had not considered the proposition for a stripe, Representative Kahn, who put the Selective Draft bill through the House, said he thought the Nation should go even further and should give a certificate to every man who had been called in the draft and had responded and been accepted, even though he might not even have been put into a uniform. "Thousands of men," he explained, "had been kept out of uniform by the sudden signing of the armistice, and he thought they should have adequate recognition."

Mr. Kahn believed that the uniform itself might be a sufficient "badge of honor," and he advocates some provision to permit each man to keep his uniform, "to hand down to his children and his children's children."

LITERARY NOTES

Page and Company, the well known Boston publishing house are putting out some timely Christmas books and also a number of the very best novels with a war and peace flavor among the recent additions to the book store offerings are the following:

How the Title of One Book Was Born. "Bitty" Wellman, victor of many air battles over the Western front, was worried. He had written a book giving graphic accounts of his experiences, but he could not find the proper title. "You know what I want," he said excitedly as he paced back and forth in the office of his publishers, The Page Company, Boston. "It must have action, a lot of 'pep'!" Something like this, "Go after 'em," "Clean 'em up," "Go get 'em," "Stop," cried the publisher. "That is it! Go for 'em, or M'ing for 'em!" It took a few moments for the meaning of the words to "sink in"—and then Wellman smiled as he

Miss Stimson is Chief of A.E.F. Staff of Nurses

JULIA C. STIMSON

Here is Miss Julia C. Stimson, who occupies the most coveted position available to the trained, registered nurse. She is the chief nurse of the American Expeditionary Force in France. Prior to her appointment, which was effective early in November, Miss Stimson was the head of the American Red Cross nursing staff in France.

Before the United States entered the war, Miss Stimson joined the American Hospital Unit No. 21, while serving as superintendent of nurses and head of the training school for nurses at Barnes Hospital, Washington University, St. Louis. Just after American intervention, this unit was one of twelve hospital units assigned to British forces and left for France May 17, 1917, and sailed from New York, Saturday, May 12.

For ten months Miss Stimson was on duty at British Hospital No. 12.

and in April, 1918, she was transferred to the service of the American Red Cross.

Miss Stimson graduated from Vassar in 1901, intending to study medicine. Later she determined that her field was nursing and in 1904 she entered the New York Hospital Training School for Nurses. In 1911 she was called from her position as superintendent of Barnes Hospital, New York, to take charge of nursing and hospital service at Washington University, St. Louis.

A woman of unusual ability and great personal charm, Miss Stimson is a native of Worcester, Mass., and the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Henry A. Stimson of New York City. Since she has been in France, Washington University, St. Louis, has conferred the degree of Master of Arts upon her in recognition of her distinguished service overseas.

had not smiled since he undertook to write the book!

Chatterbox Appears Despite Adverse War Conditions.

When the children wake up on Christmas morning and find a 1918 Chatterbox left by Santa Claus, they will not realize how nearly the War came to robbing them of their coveted story book. First, the ship carrying the original plates of "The King of Juveniles" from England, was torpedoed, and arrived at an Atlantic Port long overdue. Congested freight conditions then had to be overcome, and when the plates arrived in Boston labor shortage and other war conditions made it impossible for The Page Company to have the work done at its Boston binderies. There was but one solution to the problem—New York City automobile—and the head of their manufacturing department carried the scheme thru with his personal car, making it possible for the children to have "The King of All Juveniles" on schedule time!

An Unusual Novel of Political Intrigue

Mayor Frederick W. Dunne of Trenton, N. J., is one of the strongest boosters for his friend's new book, "The Man Who Won," by Leon D. Hirsch, just published by The Page Company, Boston. While in Boston recently as one of the delegates to the Deeper Waterways Convention he was personally responsible for a large number of sales of the book, and also brought it to the attention of many prominent men. Speaking of it, J. Murray Hurlbert, Dock Commissioner of New York City and a former Congressman, he said, "He started the book at my suggestion. His attention was gripped after reading two or three chapters and he finished the reading at one sitting with absorbing interest."

A "Different" War Book

The publication date of "With Old Glory in Berlin" (The Page Company, Boston) has been delayed because of war conditions, and is now announced for November 1st. The book is written by Josephine Thérèse, an American girl who went to the capital of Hunland to study music, and was obliged to stay there for six months after America entered the war before she could escape. During this enforced residence she learned to know the Germans as they are. Her story tears away censorship's curtain which has veiled the real ambitions of the "peace loving" Hun.

A Beautiful Story of the Greatest and Noblest Charity.

The children of America have eagerly done their part in aiding the war sufferers. They have given their pennies as freely as the older folks gave their dollars. And now they want to know something about the wonderful organization they have been aiding. "The Story of the Red Cross" as told to the Little Colonel, to be published shortly by The Page Company, Boston, takes the reader to Switzerland, where the society was originated. Mrs. Anne Fellows Johnston, the author of the other famous Little Colonel books, tells the story of the development of the organization and the great work it has done in a style which will please the little tots and make them glad for the sacrifices they have made in the aid of humanity.

Another Detective Thriller

How did the famous Presidential message "sneak" which enabled so many to get rich over night at the stock exchanges occur? This question has puzzled many. George Barton gives an explanation in his new book, "The Strange Adventures of Bromley Barnes" (The Page Company, Boston) and describes vividly the methods used by the great detective, head of the Government Secret Service, in unravelling mysteries and bringing government offenders to book. Bromley Barnes made his first bow to the reading public in "The Page Company's" earlier success, "The Mystery of the Red Flame."

Gave a Talk to Women.

Mrs. Dr. Kerr of Boston, representing the war department, was a visitor at the local yard on Friday and at noon addressed 700 of the women employees on health matters. Dr. Kerr is a graduate of Tufts and her talk to female operatives was very instructive and interesting. She spoke a little over half an hour and was well received by the women.

BAKER ANXIOUS SICK SOLDIERS BE PAID.

Washington, Dec. 13.—While no specific complaint has reached Maj. Gen. Ireland, surgeon-general of the army, that men in hospitals in this country had not been paid promptly, Secretary Baker believes it possible that there are many of the wounded and sick soldiers brought home from France who probably have not received their pay for several months.

The secretary explained today that the old pay system, under which company commanders made out pay rolls for all the men on their company rosters, had broken down, because wounded and sick men became so far separated from their commands that it was impossible for the company commanders to know what had become of them.

To offset this, a new system of individual pay books was inaugurated, Mr. Baker said, but because of the great size of the force in France it has not been brought into complete operation.

The war secretary said that on his return from France recently he issued instructions that no men be embarked from France except with complete outfit of clothing and with enough money to provide them with funds for incidental needs on the journey and for some time at the hospitals in this country.

BAKER TO DROP WAR BUREAUS

Washington, Dec. 11.—Detailed plans for reorganization of the war department and the general staff, embodying the experience gained during the war, soon will be ready for presentation to Congress. The project will not include, however, any proposal of a general military policy for the country, as that question will be held in abeyance until after the peace conference at Paris.

General staff officials are giving attention now to the preparation of a bill for the permanent reorganization of the staff itself. It is understood that strong recommendations soon will be laid before Secretary Baker for abolishing the old bureau system and for centralizing both authority and responsibility for the entire military establishment in the general staff.

Instructions for the preparation of such plans were issued by Gen. March when the armistice with Germany was signed. During the war, the emergency authority of the Overman bill had proved sufficient to enable Gen. March to erect the staff machinery as it now stands.

Secretary Baker's approval of an effort to write into law a staff bill, which will perfect and perpetuate the central control Gen. March has created, is generally expected as an official call his interpretation of a clause of the national defense act, which might easily have been read as authorizing the staff in the statutory bureau of the department. Mr. Baker then effected to combine the law as leaving the option with him and under that interpretation made the chief of staff supreme.

Gen. March has indicated that the development of new technical arms in the army during the present war would necessitate provisions for the coordinated control and expansion of these through the general staff organization. It is expected, therefore, that the forth-coming bill will clearly define the status of such arms as the air service, the motor transport corps, the chemical warfare service and the tank corps. The chief of each service, probably will be a member of the general staff.

Similarly the entire distribution of the functions formerly vested in the quartermaster general, chief of ordnance and adjutant-general will be confirmed and centralized in the staff.

While the reorganization of the army itself will be deferred until the outcome of the peace conference, known many aspects of the subject are being studied by general staff officers. The staff already has asserted its virtual monopoly adhering to the universal training idea. Should the peace conference arrive at a decision, which would sharply limit military establishments, however, officers say it might easily be that universal training machinery would be entirely unnecessary for the size of the army the United States was to maintain.

TO SPEED UP
DEMOMOBILIZATION

(By Associated Press)
Washington, Dec. 14.—Demobilization in the United States is now proceeding at the rate of 15,000 men released from the Army every day. General March, announced today, it will be anticipated that a rate of 30,000 a day will be reached when full momentum is attained. The War Department has now designated a total of 821,000 men in the United States for discharge, an increase of nearly 200,000 during last week. General March made it clear, however, that designation of troops does not mean immediate discharge but severance from the service as their turn is reached in demobilization.

KITTELY BOY DIES
FROM WOUNDS
ON BATTLEFIELD

Henry Wallingford Passed
Away in Hospital on Nov. 28.

A telegram from Adjutant General Harp of the War Department to his relatives in Kittery on Friday, brought the sad news of the death in France on Thanksgiving day from wounds, of Henry Wallingford, a well known and popular Kittery young man. Private Wallingford was a member of the 26th Division and was wounded in action very early in November. A letter from him later written in a hospital in France, to William Shuttles.

HENRY WALLINGFORD.

He was greatly increased. One minister said Friday that he had sent as a result of the canvas 150 personal letters to new people to attend church on Sunday, they in their reply having expressed a preference for his church.

When the final returns are made some figures will be given out. In the meanwhile everybody got an invitation to go to church on Sunday and the pastors of all the churches expect to have very large congregations.

Twin Mountain, N. H., society notes: Ethel Houghton was 15 years old November 18, 1918, and next year Everett Stone will be 12 years old September 19, 1919.

Private Wallingford was a member of Riverside Lodge, I. O. O. F. of Kittery. He is survived by four sisters, one Mrs. Linnie Jackson, being a resident of Kittery.

OBSEQUIES

George W. Miller.

The funeral of George W. Miller, who died on Monday at the Portsmouth Hospital, was held on Thursday afternoon at his late home in South Berwick, Rev. P. E. Miller, pastor of the Congregational church officiating. The death of Mr. Miller was especially sad, as though he had been in poor health for the past year his condition was not known to be critical and after he went to the hospital for treatment for a heart difficulty he seemed to be improving steadily. Mr. Miller was a graduate of Berwick Academy, class of 1911 and he also took a two year course in agricultural chemistry at New Hampshire College. He was a prominent athlete while there and was catcher on the base ball team, and played also on the foot ball team. He has also played with the Sunset League. He went to Camp Devens in June but received his discharge on account of physical disability. His age was 26 years and 2 weeks.

PORTSMOUTH SCHOOL HOME GARDENS

The "war gardens" of the public school pupils in this city are a good example of the saying, "Every little bit added to what you've got makes just a little bit more." The "little bit more" in this case is garden and field products with an estimated value of $4,516, that make a noticeable addition to the city's winter food supply. In a quiet sort of way the boys and girls have been winning a very real sort of victory.

In the late spring a canvass of the High school showed that many boys planned to have gardens in spite of the fact that they were working in the ship yards, stores, etc., all day. Headmaster Gray recently interviewed all who had gardens and found that the estimated value of products raised by both boys and girls was $2250. The cost of the gardens was about $382.

The Whipple, Junior High School, reported $421.25 with an outlay of $18.30.

The elementary schools have no less worthy showing. Their sum total was $2295.75 with an outlay of $311.21. Distributed among the several buildings the value of products raised was: Lafayette, $742.60; Haven, $177.08; Spaulding, $272.21; Woodbury, $139.20; Farragut, $58.35; Cabot St., $55.55; Franklin, $56.60; Maine, $24.60.

The coming of spring will see many new recruits added to the ranks of seasoned veterans in the U. S. S. G. Army.

DISCHARGING SOLDIERS FROM THE FORTS

The work of demobilizing the forces at the forts in the lower harbor is going steadily on and the reduction is being made as fast as the men are examined and discharged.

On Friday 150 men were discharged and the majority of them left immediately for their home. Many of the men were local boys who, of course, were only allowed three miles travel.

The following telegram which was received at Boston on Friday, evidently had not been received here as the men so far have got just their travel and what was due them in pay:

"Returning soldiers will be given one month's pay plus transportation allowance of 3 1/2 cents a mile from point of demobilization to home town. Their railroad tickets will cost two cents a mile by direct route. Demobilization will be for nearest army camp to home section of majority of men in each unit."

TWO GOOD SHOWS NEXT WEEK

KEENE AGAIN VICTIM OF INFLUENZA

Keene, Dec. 14.—On account of the recurring of the influenza epidemic in Keene, this time affecting the younger age, the board of health ordered the graded schools closed Friday. They will probably open on Dec. 27 if conditions at that time permit. The barber shops have not been ordered closed nor has there been a ban put on public gatherings. The high school probably will not close until Dec. 20.

FEDERAL TRADE BOARD REPORTS ON WORK

Washington, Dec. 13.—Legislation to extend the powers of the Federal Trade Commission so as to bring all individuals and partnerships operating in interstate commerce within its supervision is recommended in the commission's annual report made public today, outlining activities for the year ended June 30.

The Commission also again urges enactment of legislation previously submitted to Congress, designed to prevent the practice of commercial bribery.

During the year, the commission says, its work was chiefly devoted to assisting other departments and special war agencies of the government in matters concerned with the prosecution of the war. The report reviews many special activities and cost investigations prosecuted, an inquiry into control of enemy corporations, through which assistance was rendered to the Alien Property Custodian and the intelligence sections of the Army and Navy.

Investigations into the cost of production and control of foodstuffs which had previously been begun were continued and one of these culminated in reports on meat packing companies made public in a report to the President. Several other food investigations still are under way.

There were presented to the Commission during the year many applications for proceedings charging unfair competitive methods under the Clayton Act. The Commission disposed of 240 applications during the year and has pending 283 cases.

American manufacturers and exporters, taking advantage of the Webb bill, filed with the Commission 36 statements of combination for purposes of export trade. Arrangements are being made to oversee the activities of these combinations, the report states, saying in this regard:

"The world-wide dislocation of trade and industry incident to the war is creating new conditions which may vitally affect American business in the future. The Commission is closely following new developments in international trade, as they arise, with a view to ascertaining the bearing they may have on the foreign trade of the United States."

City Marshal George H. Magoon has returned from Deerfield where he shot a 125-pound doe. It has been shipped to this city.

The body of James Elmer Childs, who was instantly killed by a train Thursday, near Place's Crossing, Farmington, were removed from the Boston and Maine baggage room in this city to the residence in Farmington Thursday afternoon by Undertaker B. Frank Perkins of Farmington who prepared it for burial.

Abel Greenleaf of Carryville, Mass., has bought the Joseph Surtinater place on the Ten Rod road and will reside there. Mr. and Mrs. Surtinater will leave for California this week where they will reside.

John V. Horne of Dewey street dressed a hog for Brennan Brothers that tipped the scales at 500 pounds.

Edwin Thompson of Charles street while operating a power drill at the Portsmouth navy yard, was injured in the stomach by the machine so badly that he was removed to a hospital for treatment.

Mrs. Sibyl Lord of First street run a long splinter into her thumb while attending to her household duties. The accident required medical attention.

Rev. Robert W. Coe is in Hartford,

Conn., this week, attending a meeting of the American Board of Foreign Missions. On next Sunday morning he will address the students of Phillips Andover academy in the chapel at Andover, Mass., and will return to Dover in season to conduct the afternoon service at the First Parish church.

The bell factory of L. B. Williams and Sons, one of Dover's largest manufacturing establishments, went on a five day a week schedule this week. The cause of the reduction in working hours is stated to be lack of orders, owing to uncertainty in industries caused by the cessation of war orders.

N. Y. BANDITS ROB A BANK

(By Associated Press)

New York, Dec. 13.—One man was killed and two others wounded by auto bandits who held up and robbed the East Brooklyn Savings Bank of $10,000 here today. Devitt Deal, the pay teller, who reached for a revolver when the highwaymen entered the bank, was shot and killed. Hay Coombs, the assistant treasurer, was shot and a detective in trying to arrest the men was shot in the arm. Although the robbers left a taxi running in front of the bank, they made their escape along the sidewalk carrying the bags of money.

GOVERNMENT GIVES UP CONTROL

The United States Railroad Administration having relinquished control of the Portsmouth Electric Railway, it will, effective Sunday, December 15, 1918, be operated as a separate property under the direct charge of Mr. William E. Dowdell as superintendent. When the government took over the New England lines with the other U. S. Railway lines it found that it had the local electric line as a part of the Boston & Maine.

PLEASANT EVENT AT HIGH SCHOOL ASSEMBLY HALL

A pleasant event took place in High School Assembly Hall Friday evening, the occasion being the Junior Prom which was attended by about 60 couples, the evening being filled with enjoyment to those present. The hall was prettily decorated in the class colors and 1920 pennants. Principal J. T. Gray of the high school and Mrs. Gray, also Misses Beane and Graves of the high school teaching staff, chaperoned the party. Music was furnished by Mrs. G. Melvin Clark, pianist, and Walter Cotton, traps.

At intermission ice cream was served by members of the class. The party was in general charge of Robert Marvin and Miss Katherine Emery.

YOU RUBBERED.

The funny dictionary speaks about the neck as a close connection between the chin and the chest, used for the display of linen, silk ties, jewelry and skin, fitted with guller windpipe, hinges and throat and devoted to the rubber industry. They all rubber for the date of McNeilly's orchestra and can tell you that they will be at Freeman's hall on Tuesday evening, Dec. 17th. On Tuesday evening we offer a big prize for a miracle—a miracle is a woman that won't talk. The big concert starts at 8 and the dancing at 8.45.—Adv.

VALENTINE IS INDICTED BY GRAND JURY

Obtained Money Under False Pretences at Navy Yard.

Arthur Valentine of East Herson a former workman at the navy yard was indicted by the United States grand jury at Portland on Friday on the charge of obtaining money under false pretences. Valentine secured two weeks pay of another man at the navy yard by the name of McKenna who had been discharged and was caught in the act. He admitted that he had dropped in a check each day for two weeks, thus keeping McKenna's name on the pay roll. When detected he returned the money to the government. The charge of forgery was dropped and he answered to one complaint. Valentine and McKenna worked together in the industrial department.

MRS. MARDEN IS AWARDED $500

Jury Allows Her That Amount in $2,500 Suit.

The jury in the superior court sitting on the case of H. Augusta Marden of Exeter, against the Boston and Maine railroad and the Warren Brothers, Boston contractors, allowed verdict of $500, for Miss Marden. The plaintiff sued for the sum of $2500 as the outcome of an accident on Irvington street on October 16 when the roadbed of the Portsmouth Electric Railway and the street was under repairs. The verdict was reached at 10 o'clock on Friday night. The case had been on trial for the past three days before Chief Justice Kivel.

THE HERALD HEARS

That a workman named Charles A. Roberts of Newburyport who was recently injured at the Atlantic Corporation chimneys he fell forty feet. That the report in his home city is that he was seriously injured. That if he did fall forty feet he's a lucky man. That he came out without a broken bone and hardly a scratch. That he walked out of the hospital the next day. That his escape beats some of those the boys made in the trenches. That some of the street signs in this city should be more conspicuous. That its hard to find them in the day time as well as night. That the freight cars wrecked at Hampton Falls on Friday morning were loaded with hay. That the police of Montreal have been on a strike and thieves are having a field day. That a few of the railroad detectives are still with us. That the third discharge since the armistice was signed took place at the navy yard today. That the list of real estate transfers in Portsmouth during November shows what the people are doing. That the superior court opens again on Monday. That the Navy Yard station at Kittery on the York Beach branch, has been made a registering station by the R. & M. That much sorrow is expressed in Kittery by the announcement of the death of Henry Wallingford in France. That he was one of the best liked young men in that town and at the Boston and Maine roundhouse, where he was employed for some years. That the weather man has sent along some funny stuff since Dec. 1. That the people would like to hear a few words from the real profiteering committee.

HOUSING MAN IS CHARGED WITH GRAFT

Edward J. Robinson, resident auditor at Bath, of the housing section of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, was indicted by the grand jury, which reported in the United States District Court at Portland on Friday, on the charge of intent to defraud a corporation in which the government is a stockholder and with falsifying $500, credited to his own account instead of that of the government.

NOTHING LIKE BEING AHEAD OF THE GAME

Wells Man Out for Sheriff of York County in 1920.

There is nothing like being in the game ahead of time. This evidently is the belief of Deputy Sheriff Joseph E. Clark of Wells, Me. Clark is looking a long way ahead and comes to the front as a candidate for sheriff of York County in 1920. Clark has given more or less time to highway holdups of vehicles with John Barbyorn as a passenger and he believes that his record in helping to make Maine bone-dry should stand for something. Anyhow he is in the hands of his political friends and its up to them to keep him in mind until the primaries of 1920 are at hand in York County.

Christmas and broken candy, candy canes and novelties of all kinds, at Jarvis' Confectionery store.—Adv. Exceptionally good looking sweaters make a splendid Xmas gift. See them at Mrs. Fisher's, 313 State St.—Adv. There is an ideal place to bowl afternoons or evenings. It is the Hegan alleys in the rear of the Elks' Home on Court street. Open from noon to 11 o'clock at night. Special attention given to ladies.—Adv. TO LET—Large, comfy warm room, all modern conveniences, price reasonable. 164 Lincoln avenue. Tel. 414, 1r. Have you noticed the artistic Christmas poster, "Have you a service flag in your window?"—which is conspicuous about town to advertise the Red Cross drive? The fact that the War Department has decided that all discharged soldiers may permanently retain their uniforms is pleasing news to the soldiers and their friends. Now, boys, when they are discarded for good, put them carefully away that your children and grandchildren may, in years to come show them with pride and tell how you wore them in the great struggle for democracy. Christmas candles are limited this year, better make your selections early at the Jarvis Candy Store. We solicit orders for churches, societies, home gatherings, etc.—Adv.

POLICE COURT

Angelo Cajano, charged with keeping liquor for sale, was in the municipal court today and through his attorney, Ralph C. Gray, pleaded not guilty. The case grew out of the finding of eight cases of whiskey by the police in the basement of the building at 278 State street, nearly two weeks ago. The police suspected Cajano of knowing something about the booze, but he could not be found for several days. He was reported as being in Boston. He finally appeared in court today and when his case was called he declined to take the stand. His attorney claimed that the state could not proceed with prosecution against the defendant as he was not the owner of the whiskey. The court decided from the fact that no ownership had been established, that there was not sufficient evidence to hold Cajano and he was discharged.

BURGLARS BUSY AT SOUTH ELIOT

Rob Store of T. F. Staples and the Post Office.

The grocery store of T. F. Staples & Co. and the South Eliot postoffice located in the same building, was visited by thieves on Friday night who gained entrance through a rear window. The thieves secured about $15. In addition, postage stamps valued at $8, candy, candy and other articles of food. This morning the proprietor found the cash register on the floor with the entire contents scattered about the shop. They secured no money from the safe as the same had been removed by the proprietor before leaving for home. This is the second call the store has had from burglars in two years. On the previous break they blew the safe.

EARLY MORNING FIRE ON LADD ST.

A fire which started in the kitchen over the Willis Dairy Lunch on Ladd street shortly after 1 o'clock this morning drove the occupants of the house from their rooms in their night clothes. The fire was discovered by a woman who was awakened by the smoke and she aroused the other roomers and a call was sent in for the chemical. The fire was confined to the kitchen, which was badly damaged.

Don't overlook that Kodak for the children. Montgomery's stock is complete.—Adv.
